

What you've built deserves a plan that lasts.

You've spent decades building something real. A business, a home, a family, a life's work. The question isn't whether you've been successful. It's whether what you've built will survive you in the way you want it to. That's a different question, and it needs a different kind of advisor.

Why work with me

I've been a Marine, a stockbroker, a commodities trader, a real estate managing partner, and a business owner who rebuilt after Katrina. I've made payroll, ridden out volatile markets, and turned a failing operation profitable. When you tell me about your business, your risk, or your worry about what comes next, it isn't theoretical to me.

Today I'm Director of Development for New York Life's New Orleans General Office. Before that I was an agent, financial planner, and registered investment adviser. Six designations cover the full arc of a financial life. If your question touches money, family, or a business, it almost certainly lands inside work I do every day.

How I help

Estate & Legacy Planning

Wealth transfer strategies designed around your family, not a template.

Business Succession

Who takes over, when, and how the money works. Plans that work when the day comes.

Life Insurance Structures

The right structures to protect your family and fund your estate plan.

Long-Term Care Planning

One health event shouldn't undo a lifetime of careful saving.

Retirement Income

Turning savings into a paycheck that lasts as long as you do.

What working with me looks like

1 A real conversation

Twenty minutes about where you are and where you want to go. No products, no pitch, no obligation.

2 A plan in plain English

Clear recommendations built around your goals. You'll understand every piece before you decide anything.

3 A partner over time

Life changes. The plan adapts. My team stays at the table. You'll never be a file in a drawer.

"Most people are on the 40-40-40 Plan: work 40 hours a week for 40 years to retire on 40% of what they already can't afford to live on. You can break the cycle."
